

Vowels

Vowels are the letters a, e, i, o, u. In the English language, every word has to at least have one vowel.

Sometimes the letter y can also act as a vowel.

try

why

spy

dry

Consonants

A consonant is any letter of the alphabet that is not a vowel.

For example, b, f and j are all consonants.

Which are the vowels and consonants in these words?

happy

trouble

calculator

school

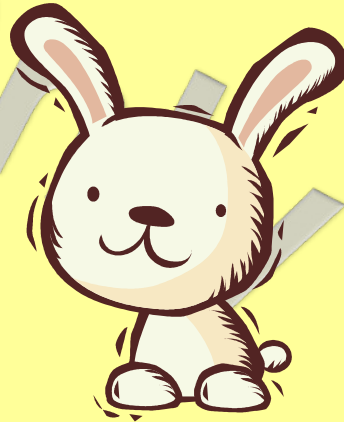

key

mouse

Syllables

Syllables are chunks of sound that you hear in a word as you say it. A good way to count syllables is to clap them as you say words.

The word dog has one syllable.

The word rabbit has two syllables.

The word butterfly has three syllables.

